How to Use the Volunteer Manual

The National CASA/GAL Volunteer Training Curriculum is designed to give you a solid base of knowledge and skills to begin your volunteer work. The Volunteer Manual will serve as your guide during training and will continue to be an important resource to which you refer throughout your service as a CASA/GAL volunteer.

The manual begins with an overview of the CASA/GAL volunteer role, the need for volunteer advocates, and the history of child advocacy in the United States. It then moves into specific skills and knowledge you need in order to work effectively with children and families. Next, you learn about the specific steps you will follow once you are assigned to a case, from gathering information and taking notes to writing court reports and monitoring a case. The final chapter covers procedural information and gives you a chance to review the information and skills you have learned. The material in each chapter builds on knowledge gained in previous chapters, and information and tasks progress from simple to complex.

Each chapter centers on a series of activities. These activities are designed with the understanding that different people learn differently. For instance, some people are highly visual learners, while others learn best when hearing material read aloud or when connecting movement and action to the learning process. Each chapter includes activities that appeal to various learning styles. The activities are designed to help you learn new material, relate it to what you already know, apply what you've learned, and consider how you will use it in the future. Activity instructions appear in boxes and are frequently followed by text or worksheets.

The curriculum's case studies allow you to apply what you are learning to a case. You will use the Harris-Price case, which appears at the end of Chapter 1, to apply material from Chapters 1–7. You will use the Kaylee Moore case, which unfolds throughout Chapters 8 and 9, as you practice various aspects of the CASA/GAL volunteer role. An optional activity in Chapter 10 uses a third case as a wrap-up for the entire curriculum.

The facilitator will assign homework at the end of each chapter. The homework is an essential tool; it allows you to apply what you've learned, explore topics in more depth, or prepare for the next session.

Throughout the Volunteer Manual you will find Learn More! references in the margins. These point you to websites or to the curriculum's Resource Materials for more in-depth exploration of a particular topic.

The Glossary at the back of the Volunteer Manual defines terms that appear in the curriculum as well as those that you will encounter during your work as a volunteer.

A list of Web Resources appears at the back of the Volunteer Manual and on the Resource Materials CD. Organized by topics covered in Chapters 1–7, this list points to a wealth of websites where you can find additional information about topics related to CASA/GAL volunteer work.

Also organized by chapter, the Resource Materials CD contains articles that provide in-depth exploration of topics touched on in the Volunteer Manual. If you do not have access to a computer with a CD drive, please tell the facilitator and make arrangements to access the Resource Materials in another form.

Throughout the curriculum the facilitator will provide additional handouts, some of which provide information specific to your local area or tribal program. Insert the handouts in the appropriate chapter in the Volunteer Manual, so you can refer back to them in the future.

The facilitator will hand out time sheets during the first training session. Use this time sheet to keep track of the time you spend training, traveling to and from class, doing homework, and so on, for the length of the training. This will help you become accustomed to tracking your volunteer hours. The facilitator will collect these time sheets at the end of the training course.
